Time
Length	7:36
Source	Statehouse News Bureau
Show Name	The State of Ohio
Segment Title	Sales taxes for schools
Major Guests	Dan Navin from the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and Fred Pausch from the Ohio School Boards Association
Points	The Chamber of Commerce opposes the plan (HB 356), saying there are too many revenue sources for too many government entities, and that the tax is unfair to those who shop in a district they don't live in. The School Boards Association supports the plan, saying it's another tool in the toolbox for schools to use until the state's school funding system is reformed.

PROGRAM	The State of Ohio #416
DAY &amp; DATE	Friday, April 16, 2004
Time
Length	17:10

Source	Statehouse News Bureau
Show Name	The State of Ohio
Segment Title	Ballot security
Major Guests	Secretary of State Ken Blackwell and Peg Rosenfield from the League of Women Voters
Points	Blackwell says electronic voting machines are safe, now that their makers have changed them after a report from Johns Hopkins indicated they aren't. The League of Women Voters is still concerned. Blackwell also discusses the "paper trail" in the machines, which allows them to be audited for a recount.

PROGRAM	The State of Ohio #416
DAY &amp; DATE	Friday, April 16, 2004
Time
Length	7:21
Source	Statehouse News Bureau
Show Name	The State of Ohio
Segment Title	Dirty rivers
Major Guests	Anthony Sasson from the Nature Conservancy and Bob Gable from the Department of Natural Resources
Points	The watchdog group American Rivers named Big Darby Creek near Columbus as the ninth most endangered river in the US. That report is a springboard for a discussion on protecting Ohio's waterways throughout the state.

PROGRAM	The State of Ohio #417
DAY &amp; DATE	Friday, April 23, 2004
Time
Length	9:00
Source	Statehouse News Bureau
Show Name	The State of Ohio
Segment Title	Video slot machines back at the Statehouse
Major Guests	Rep. Michael Gilb, R-Findlay, and Tom Smith, Ohio Council of Churches
Points	A discussion of the proposal on video slot machines at racetracks, with the proceeds would go to scholarships, to public school funding, and to early childhood initiatives. If it passes the legislature, it would go to the ballot. (Many of the 66 lawmakers who voted for the idea in December were contacted and invited to be on the show, but none were able to make it. The segment featured a sound bite from Rep. Bill Seitz, the bill's sponsor.)

PROGRAM	The State of Ohio #417

Time
Length 5:00
Source Statehouse News Bureau
Show Name The State of Ohio
Segment Title Jobless numbers
Major Guests Keith Ewald from the Ohio Department of Job and Family Services and Jon Honeck from PolicyMatters Ohio, a think-tank that does research on economic issues
Points The state says the unemployment rate is down, but admits it's because fewer people are looking for work.

PROGRAM The State of Ohio #417
DAY & DATE Friday , April 23, 2004
Time
Length 7:45
Source Statehouse News Bureau
Show Name The State of Ohio
Segment Title Liquor ads and kids
Major Guests Jim O'Hara, executive director of Georgetown University's Center on Alcohol Marketing and Youth
Points O'Hara's group says kids are being increasingly exposed to alcohol marketing. Cleveland and Columbus are listed in the 25 media markets where this is happening the most. No one from the alcohol industry was able to be on the show, but portions of statements from the Distilled Spirits Council and the Beer Institute were read over graphics of those statements.

PROGRAM The State of Ohio #418

Segment Title	Cut scores
Major Guests	Dr. Mitchell Chester, assistant superintendent of policy and accountability at the Ohio Department of Education and former Sen. Gene Watts (R-Galloway)
Points	Chester explains that Ohio students who hope to graduate starting in 2007 will have to score 42 percent in reading and 41 percent in math on the state's new 10 th grade proficiency test to be considered "proficient". The state says the test is harder than the 9 th grade test, so these new "cut scores" are fair. But Watts, the "father of the proficiency test" thinks those scores are too low.

Power plant pollution
Jack Shaner from the Ohio Environmental Council and Mike Carey from the Ohio Coal Association
The report from a Massachusetts-based consultant suggests power plant pollution shortens the lives of 24-thousand people every year, including 17-hundred in Ohio. The report also claims 28-hundred deaths each year from lung cancer, more than 200 in Ohio, because of particulate pollution. The state has 24 power plants, and electric utilities say the report is flawed, because air quality is improving, and because it doesn't note that indoor air pollution and vehicle emissions are worse than power plant pollution.
